Preface

Timon: Earth, yield me roots
He digs
Who seeks for better of thee, sause his palate
With thy most operant poison. What is here?
Gold? Yellow, glittering, precious gold?
No, gods, I am no idle votarist.
Roots, you clear heavens! Thus much of this will make
Black white, foul fair, wrong right,
Base noble, old young, coward valiant.
Ha, you gods! Why this? What, this, you gods? Why, this
Will lug your priests and servants from your sides,
Pluck stout men's pillows from below their heads.
This yellow slave
Will knit and break religions, bless th'acursed,
Make the hoar leprosy adored, place thieves,
And give them title, knee and approbation,
With senators on the bench. This is it
That makes the wappened widow wed again –
She, whom the spital-house and ulcerous sores
Would cast the gorge at, this embalms and spices
To th'April day again. Come, damned earth,
Thou common whore of mankind, that puts odds
Among the rout of nations, I will make thee
Do thy right nature ...

Since 1976 Eva Meerhoff, born Krotoa (c. 1643-1674) and Catharina (Groote Catrijn) van Paliacatta [Pulicat] (c. 1631-1683) have haunted me. Discovering Krotoa (ancestor to both my father and my mother) and Groote Catrijn (seven traceable lineal descents – five maternal and two paternal) to be two of my most prolific ancestors; and also that these two formidable women are lesser known ancestors (even multiple) to so many other colonially induced people rooted at the tip of Africa – like so many other ancestral beings from my/our past - were reasons enough for me to give them undivided attention. But the discovery that Krotoa was the first indigenous Cape woman to be colonially incorporated; and that Groote Catrijn was the first recorded female convict banished to the Dutch-occupied Cape of Good Hope and its first Dutch East India Company (VOC) slave to be liberated - exacted their release from the shadows demanding that their stories be told. My ongoing research into the lives of especially the Cape's earliest colonial women (indigene, settler, sojourner, slave, convict) – women being the fons et origo of ongoing culture - affords me the opportunity to continue revisiting my original research - many initially featured (since 1997) in numerous articles in Capensis, quarterly journal of the Genealogical Society of South Africa (Western Cape). Krotoa's and Groote Catrijn's importance and that of their colourful contemporaries has now been reassessed in terms of unravelling and understanding more fully the impact of Dutch colonization at the tip of Africa. There is now a heightened awareness in South Africa of indigenousness and slavery. Until recently, however, both Krotoa and Groote Catrijn – and many other folk - have been mostly overlooked or excluded from the orthodox and politically selective slave pantheon currently encountered in the rewriting and re-institutionalization of South African historiography. The reality of shared indigenous and slave roots across a diminishing racial or ethnic divide, however, cannot any longer be suppressed. There is a need for expanded biographies on, and ongoing genealogical inquiries into, not only these very important early Cape colonial figures, but many others.

More than 30 years of researching and documenting each recorded individual that peopled the early colonial period of the VOC-occupied Cape of Good Hope (1652-1713), and given the present-day dearth of knowledge regarding diasporized slaves and the ethnically challenged indigenes, at a time when the need to incorporate the historically marginalized underclasses into a more global consciousness is being increasingly recognized, the publication of accessible representative biographies has become imperative. Ever since Anna J. Böeseken's seminal work Slaves and Free Blacks at the Cape 1658-1700 in 1977, little attempt has been made to write more detailed biographies on any of the individuals originally referred to by Böeseken or any other people for that matter - thus the raison d'être for this collection of biographical excursions from the initial period of Dutch colonization. This collection comprises mostly indigenous and slave biographies for the period (1652-1713) ending with the devastating smallpox epidemic that utterly transformed the little colony forever thereafter. The lives of a few hundred people have been recollected in varying degrees of detail depending on how much has survived in the written record.

This work is also a tribute to my own indigenous and slave ancestors thus far unearthed from this period - consciousness of whom has given me a whole new more meaningful sense of being 'ameri-eurafricasian' and then some ...:

Although much of South Africa's slave and indigenous heritage is being rediscovered, little about the people dating back to the 16th century has hitherto been unearthed. The 18th and 19th centuries have been more accessible to researchers and historians especially in view of the more legible and easier-to-read records. The 17th century has proved to be a lot more inaccessible due to the more difficult Gothic Dutch script. Invariably researchers (especially academics) have been reluctant to share their transcriptions of archival documents consulted when publishing. I have opted, instead, to rather share my transcriptions in order to arrive at greater accuracy, insight and understanding of these difficult records. It is hoped that more fleshed-out biographies of many more slaves, indigenes and others will follow.

My heartfelt gratitude to:

Guide to the Text

General Historical Background

The wind-swept Cape of Good Hope ('the Cape') was a Dutch colonial translittoral holding or possession that emerged quite late (1652) in an already established colonial empire under the control of 'The United East India Company' or Verenigde Oost-Indische Compagnie ('the VOC') stretching from Southern Africa to Timor. The VOC-empire had grafted itself onto an earlier Portuguese empire, which had already paved the way for increased European colonial expansion into Africa and Asia. Dutch trade with Asia was organized through the VOC in terms of an exclusive charter (1602) from the States-General of the United Provinces of the Free Netherlands (the 'Dutch Republic') for trade and enforcement of Dutch interests against competitors. A commercial as well as a government agent in Asia, its business was conducted by a hierarchy of officials (called merchants) with headquarters in Batavia [Jakarta on Java, Indonesia], after 1619. The directors of the VOC in the Netherlands were known as the Lords Seventeen (Heeren XVII). The Company was formally dissolved (31 December 1795) and its debts and possessions taken over by the Batavian Republic, predecessor to the present-day Kingdom of the Netherlands.

The VOC's main priority at the Cape of Good Hope was to provide support to all of its ships that plied between the Netherlands (Patria) and the East Indies. This entailed the running of an efficient hospital, burying the dead and the ready supply of food and drink to the survivors. The colonial encroachment (occupatio) on aboriginal Khoi/San ('Hottentot'/'Bushmen') lands resulted in the signing of 'treaties' ex post facto in attempts to 'legitimize' Dutch occupation in terms of International Law. The Dutch soon rationalized their ill-conceived occupation of the Cape by transforming the refreshment station into a colony, importing slaves and convicts, granting company employees their 'freedom' to become permanent settlers and expanding territorially, thereby colonizing not only their land - but also the Cape aborigines themselves. By the time the Cape was a fully operational VOC refreshment station, *buiten comptoir*¹, factory, residency, fortified settlement and colony, a creole multi-ethnic Dutch-Indies culture had emerged at the tip of Africa (het uijterste hoeck van Africa). Significantly, the Cape of Good Hope was the only Dutch colony where the Dutch language, albeit creolized and indigenized, effectively took root and evolved into a formalized and institutionalized language - Afrikaans.

The Cape of Good Hope for that period is best imagined in terms of the present-day Cape Flats once being drifting dunes of sand. Between Cape Town and the second colony of Stellenbosch, there lay a waste-land of prehistoric sea-bed making the Cape peninsula appear to be an island cut off from the rest of Africa. The colony was initially a dumping ground for the VOC's sick, dead, political exiles and convicts. The place can be summed up by the following key words: fort, penal settlement, cemetery, hospital, slave lodge, vegetable garden, drinking hole and brothel. Transferred officials and servants could not be expected to stay there indefinitely and 'free-burghers' (vrijburghers) - a minority of whom were manumitted slaves termed 'free-blacks' (vrijzwarten) - and their wives, if not legally bound to stay for a fixed period as 'free citizens', would have opted to leave sooner. Some even deserted by running or stowing away. There were very few imported women so that there existed a maximum demand for sexual favours from slave women and detribalized aborigines. Some European women, appreciating this chronic shortage, even risked cross-dressing and leaving for the Cape and the East Indies disguised as men. A number were discovered even before their ships sailed past the Cape. Then, there were many more stowaways and high-sea captives. All life revolved around the coming and going of the VOC fleets and their motley crews - and keeping the 'Hottentots' at bay. An overpopulated hospital, multiple burials, illegal trade (either between the ship folk and the free burghers or corrupt officials or local aborigines), fornication, homosexuality, prostitution, gambling, drinking, squabbling, stealing, punishing and killing were the dis/order of the day.

Nomenclature, terminology, Dutch 17th & 18th century writing conventions & archival sources

17th century Dutch writing conventions display a healthy aversion to standardization. There is a tendency in South Africa to convert, incorrectly, old Dutch names found in original documents using modern Afrikaans writing conventions. In particular, the principle of 'writing one concept as one word' derives from a more removed (if not alien) High German convention imposed once written Afrikaans conventions became institutionalized. Hence, the original Blaauw Berg is rendered Blouberg and re-rendered Blaauwberg [sic]. The Dutch were happy to abide by the European (proto-international) name generally used for the Cape, viz. the Portuguese Cabo de Boa Esperanza. The Dutch, however, often influenced by French, gallicized the latter half of the name: Cabo de Boa Esperance. The Dutch rendition of the name is generally found as Caep de Goede Hoop. Caep or Caap is often also found as Caab. Place names are used as the Dutch knew them at the time, as opposed to latter-day 'politically correct' names. The spelling of personal names found in the records have been standardized (except when quoted directly from the sources) in order to avoid confusing the reader unnecessarily. Foreign terms are translated into English when they first appear in the text. Archival sources are not referenced separately, but are detailed in endnotes after each chapter.

Naming people

The 17th century Dutch generally used patronyms and toponyms, even when family names or surnames were known or in existence and sometimes used. The use of a family name serves often as an indicator of higher status. One's provenance or place of birth was more important. This is because of the European convention of bureaucratically confining people to their places of birth even if they had already moved away. Slaves were named in the same way. Many toponyms, however, are often interchangeable perhaps due to bureaucratic laxity and/or ignorance when dealing with the places of origin and/or purchase of enslaved and manumitted peoples, e.g.:

van Malabar / van Cochin / van Coromandel / van Paliacatta / van Bengale

Currency, weight & measurements

The VOC's monetary unit of account until 1658 consisted of two currencies:

the guilder (gulden) - also known as florin and represented by the symbol f; and the stuiver (1 florin = 20 stuivers)

the Spanish-American rial - also known as the real, real-of-eight and piece-of-eight. (1 real = 48 stuivers)

Thereafter the rixdaalder (rixdollar), abbreviated as Rds replaced these as the unit of account and converted generally to the amount of 2.5 to 3 florins per rixdollar. (1 rixdollar = 1 real = 3 florins = 48 stuivers). For the first half of the 17th century the Spanish-American rial-of-eight (also found as real-of-eight) was widely used in the East by the Dutch as real money and as a unit of account, being usually converted at about 48 stuivers, and considered as the (slightly overvalued) equivalent of the rixdollar (1 real = 2.4 florins). By VOC practice the florin was valued at 20 stuivers in the Netherlands and 16 stuivers in the Dutch Indies (including the Cape). As the rixdollar converted to 48 stuivers, it was worth 2.4 florins in the Netherlands and 3 florins in the Indies. This variance allowed persons transferring money from the Indies to the Netherlands to make a profit on the exchange rate. The Dutch pound (pond) weight most commonly used was the Amsterdam pound which amounted to 0.494 kg. Land (erwen) in South Africa was (and still is) measured by means of morgen and roeden.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE - FIRST MARRIAGES & BAPTISMS (1652-1665)

met kint gemaect?... segt het vrij, daer is niet aengelegen, het is ten dienste van de Compagnie.*

"Has any of your men had anything to do with the female slaves and fructified them?" ... Tell it freely, no harm is done, it is for the benefit of the Company."

- Jan van Riebeeck purportedly addressing a malingering freeman Barend Waenders:²

Mansell G. Upham

The first Christian baptismal, membership and marriage register for the VOC-occupied Cape of Good Hope ('the Cape') commences 23 August 1665.³ Prior to that, and ever since the colony and penal settlement's founding (1652), there was no resident church minister. Pre-1665 baptisms and marriages are recorded cursorily in the Journal and in separate despatches sent to the Classis Amsterdam – the Reformed Church's consistory in Amsterdam and governing body for VOC ministers serving in the Dutch East Indies - by the Church's then chief representative at the Cape, the sick-comforter (sieckentrooster).⁴

Past attempts by historians⁵ and genealogists to document pre-1665 Cape baptisms and marriages fall short of accomplishing a comprehensive or authoritative list. Böeseken claims that Dominee Joan van Arckel compiled a list of names of baptized infants on becoming the Cape's first resident church minister.⁶ No such list can be traced. A list of names of baptized infants – reputedly transcribed from Van Arckel's 'list' in the late Dr Anna Böeseken's hand given to the writer by the late Margaret Cairns - on closer inspection, appears to be a list more likely compiled from miscellaneous baptisms recorded by Spoelstra⁷ plus assumed (but questionable) baptisms (no dates) for Jan Bruijn (son of Eva van Madagascar) and two 'Abyssinian' slave girls, Lijsbeth & Cornelia Arabus.⁸

Any comprehensive compilation remains bedevilled by an initial inconsistent recording of baptized infants at the Cape settlement - especially those of slaves. Often, even the names of the mothers are left unrecorded. Any attempts are further exacerbated in particular by:

- (1) a missing despatch (February 1659) sent by the sick-comforter to the Classis Amsterdam recording the baptisms (with no mention in the Company Journal whatsoever) of at least 4 infants (of whom 1 was slave-born); and

- (2) no record of the names of several baptized infants mentioned in 2 entries of the Journal (1663); and
- (3) with no record yet traced in the archives of the Classis Amsterdam for 14 of these aforementioned infants (baptized 16 and 30 September) - of whom at least 11 were slave-born.

While stopping over at the Cape in the afore-mentioned year, a sickly Rev. Petrus Casier / Cassier baptized infants on four separate occasions:

- 2 September: "some" children baptized;
- 5 September: an unnamed legitimate halfslag infant brought over from Robben Island;
- 16 September: 1 unnamed infant of "Netherland Christian parents" & the remaining 11 "all of the female slaves of the Company, mostly illegitimate and born from time to time";
- 30 September: 2 unnamed children.

Also, until recently there has been perhaps insufficient interest or urgency in verifying or finalizing any list since few modern-day South Africans – in particular those historically and politically classified 'White' (and previously 'European') - actually descend from the bulk of the European people marrying and baptizing during this early colonial period. Ironically, it is also from the majority of the baptized illegitimate and hybrid slaves during this same early colonial period that most latter-day Afrikaners and/or Boers (as well as their multi-hued offspring, extended family and blood relations), descend rather than transferred European families of VOC officials who after a short sojourn generally moved out.

Previous publications with additional notes from archival and other sources, including:

- arrivals of women and children;
- arrivals of slaves;
- muster rolls of colonial inhabitants and slaves;
- recorded incidents of concubinage;
- pointers to possible biological paternity of slave children fathered by Europeans; and
- identifying baptisms for Cape-born individuals surviving infancy to later marry at the Cape are reworked systematically hereunder to provide - hopefully - a more comprehensive list of baptisms and marriages (1652-1665) and minimize this lacuna in South Africa's colonial genesis. In future the intention is to add commentaries to transcriptions of all subsequent baptisms, marriages and church membership for the period (1665-1673). Such an exercise adds 'more flesh to the bones' hopefully adumbrating earlier systematic inquiries into the origins of the 'Cape-Dutch', 'Boers' and 'Afrikaners' by C.C. de Villiers / George McCall Theal⁹, H.C. Colenbrander¹⁰ and Johannes A. Heese¹¹ - in what seems to be an interminable, if not futile, quest to determine or rationalize that overriding and 'unsettling' question:

to what extent can this colonially induced clustering of Boeren - what Hans F. Heese aptly terms *groep sonder grense*¹² (family without frontiers?) - justifiably be, or partially be, or not be "actually bastards ... descendants of slave mothers and 'Hottentot' women" (... dat de Boeren eigenlik baastaards zijn, afkomelingen van slaven-moeders en Hottentotsche vrouwen ...)¹³.

Revisiting these works and incorporating overlooked information brings us closer to jettisoning the redundant term 'non-White' and pin-pointing more precisely the African and Asian – including even Arabian and Japanese - origins of many of the colony's founding Mothers of the Nation.

Marriage as secularized institution

Unlike baptism, marriage – no longer the pre-Reformation exclusive domain of the Church ('canon marriage'), derived legality from civil registration. This either popularly coincided with, or was followed by, a church ceremony after uncontested banns. Pre-1665 Cape marriages were consequently mostly civil, seldom ecclesiastic. Only some wedded couples had their union further consecrated by Batavia-bound ministers in transit. These marriages are recorded in the Company Journal and in resolutions of the Cape's governing body, the Council of Policy. Before the creation (1676) of a Matrimonial Court or Commissioners of Marriage Affairs (Collegie der houwelijcxse saken)¹⁴, marriages were performed by the secretary of the Council of Policy. Before four commissioners (two Company servants and two burghers), all persons intending to wed had to appear in person showing that no legal impediments to the marriage existed and issued with a certificate ('registered marriage proclamations') attesting thereto. Only on presentation of this certificate could a church minister consecrate the marriage.¹⁵

Unfortunately, notwithstanding South Africa's enviable collection of surviving official records for the VOC-period, records for the Matrimonial Court – recording all marriages - have not survived. Although most marriages coincided with a customary church ceremony with the marriage register reflecting the majority of marriages taking place, records of some marriages - more controversial or secular or Lutheran / Catholic or other non-Reformed Christian denominations - may be lost.¹⁶ This contradicts claims by Malherbe and Groenewald that:

- (1) all Matrimonial Court-approved marriages were solemnized afterwards in church;
- (2) until the late 1700s (before right of public worship was extended to Lutherans) legal marriage vested solely in the Reformed Church; and
- (3) that the Reformed Church at the Cape exerted greater control over this aspect of people's private lives since, unlike the case in the Dutch Republic, purely secular marriages only became possible very late in the 18th century.¹⁷

Too often, the VOC is seen too narrowly in a political sense as a 'Dutch' company and the Cape of Good Hope as a 'Dutch' colony. Effectively, it was a Dutch managed Company with a huge work force of migrant labourers coming from the German lowlands and Scandinavia whose inhabitants were predominantly Lutheran. Nevertheless, like the misnomer 'Cape Malay'¹⁸, the somewhat romanticized term 'Cape Dutch' persists in the lexicon. Scrutiny of the names of the early Cape's communicants reveals a small Church membership and limited participation by the majority of the colony's Christian inhabitants. Actual confessed membership (or communicants) of the Reformed Church was especially small when compared to actual population figures in Cape census records (Opgaaf Rollen) and confirmed by visiting minister Francois Valentijn's observations on poor church attendance:¹⁹

When in 1714 I went to the Lord's Supper here ... I found that the Church-members totalled 40 men and 48 women only, including those in the return-fleet, of whom there were a number, and it was entirely surprising that among those who approached the table there was no Member of the Council of Policy, and apparently also none of them was a church-member ... From this it can be seen, how little so many Preachers have gained in all these years by their toil among these inhabitants, due in no wise to faltering of their zeal, but to the stupidity and indolence of the Burghers. I perceived also, that there are many Lutherans among the Servants.

As sine qua non to marriage, couples were obliged, however, to furnish proof of Christian baptism.²⁰ This explains the number of adult baptisms for Mennonites or Anabaptists and converted 'Jews' found in the records. This important prerequisite is thus a vital tool in identifying individual recorded baptisms. Only by the 1830s was this rule relaxed by the Dutch Reformed Church and marriage between unbaptized persons performed.²¹ Baptism - still a sacrament under church control - became in Cape Dutch colonial society (initially peopled by White Christians, local indigenes, slaves, convicts and political exiles) an even more powerful regulating and normalizing force securing access to legitimacy and respectability. An incident in 1674 exemplifies such Church control:²²

Further the Rev. "Dominus" Rudolphus Meerlant submitted to the brethren how lately one of the burghers intended to have his infant baptized, but that neither the parents nor sponsors were members of the Reformed Religion, and that he had refused to do this unless the produced at least one sponsor who professed the restored (herstelde) religion. That the following Sunday the father appeared in church with a "Reformed" sponsor, so that with the approbation of the brethren the child had been baptized; but as such cases are becoming daily more frequent, he wished the Church Council to consider the matter and every member to submit his own opinion personally at the next meeting, that the whole, being summarized and confirmed with the approval of the Governor and Council, may serve as a permanent Rule for the church here. This the members promised to do.

Unlike marriages, however, baptisms could only take place when ministers stopped over at the Cape.

Baptism and Marriage of Heathens

Some background is necessary regarding the baptism and marriage of Cape aborigines, imported slaves, their illegitimate children (marriage between slaves was not legally sanctioned) and those termed heathens.

The VOC prohibited enslavement of Cape aborigines. Attempts to convert indigenes were never a priority of the Company. Only very few were ever baptized. Ever since Dutch occupation of the Cape (1652) and prior to 1674, there were only two recorded baptisms of 'Hottentots' - those of the in/famous Goringhaicona woman Eva Meerhoff (born Krotoa) (c.1643-1674) (baptized 3 May 1662) and the appropriated 'foundling' Florida (3 March 1669) together with the baptisms of Eva's 3 legitimized and legitimate Eurafrican children - geprocreeert bij een Natuirljcke Ingeboorene Africaanse Vrouw) and fathered by Peter Meerhoff (from Copenhagen) - and her 2 illegitimate children by unknown fathers (Jeronimus and Anthonij).²³ Thereafter, during the period (1674-1705), no baptisms are recorded at the Cape for any aborigines or children of aborigine mothers.²⁴

In the hope that they may be converted, an optimistic Jan van Riebeeck, the Cape's first commander, made a point of including the Cape's aborigines in the official prayer that took place at the commencement of each session of the Council of Policy:²⁵

... ende onder dese wilde brutale menschen [inserted later - mogelijck sijnde] uwe ware gereformeerde Christelijke Leere mettertijt mochte voortgeplant ende verbreijt worden ...

Ironically, he had misgivings for he revised the prayer soon thereafter inserting – not without irony - the words “being possible” mogelijck sijnde ... The Rev. Johannes Overney (from Friesland) did not mince his words when he dutifully and regretfully informed the Classis Amsterdam that even after more than 36 years of Dutch colonial occupation “no children of our own inhabitants, the ‘Hottentots’ have been baptized except for one woman, having become a member, and also her children – yet this nation is completely averse to our religion no matter how hard we try” (... geen kinderen van onse eigene Inwoonders, de Hottentots, werden gedoopt dan alleen een vrou [Eva Meerhoff], die, ledemaet geworden sijnde, haere kinderen ooc gedoopt sijn: doch dese natie is teenemael afkeerigh van onse Godsdienst, wat middelen daertoe ooc voor desen sijn aengewent).²⁶

Despite initial lip-service to convert the ‘Hottentots’, the Cape’s first sick-comforter Willem Barentsz: Wylant in a letter (20 April 1655) to the Classis Amsterdam, by pleading in advance the futility of such an exercise, ‘justified’ his nil return:²⁷

“Henceforth regarding this nation at this place or these inhabitants, they are painfully poor, miserable folk in terms of soul and body; robbed of any knowledge of God; living like cattle, so that we are unable and cannot discern any manner of religion or whether one even exists; not showing any honour or service to Him, it appears that like the dumb beasts in that place, no religion or worship of God exists for them, as they live like beasts, not given to labour, sowing or planting and they do not even recognize God or attempt to know him; so that any speedy attempts to bring them to the Word of God appear to be impossible as their wont is not to learn anything. Also, they do not want to stay in one place [given to wander], as I, after two expeditions, even had two youths live with me, whom I considered worthy of educating, teaching them to read and write and also speech, so as to bring them to the light; but these savages were only intent on living in the wild, and were averse to any control, so that it has been fruitless to win over this nation; this despite the love of Almighty God and those who are capable of being pulled from the darkness and brought to the light of Jesus Christ. Meanwhile I shall not neglect my guilty duty to use all available means, or God Almighty’s love. And in so doing to draw them out of the kingdom of darkness and deliver them from the hands and shackles of Satan and to bring them to the kingdom of His Son; as heartily one wishes that the one journey by God’s grace through His merciful love will serve as an example to these miserable people with whom one cannot be expected to deal without first describing the reality” ...

Effectively nothing happened thereafter except for the baptism of Krotoa with the ironic, hopeful but ambiguous, name of Eva - a first – “the first of these autochthonous folk, called Hottentoos” (de eerste van dese ingeborene lantsluiden, genaemt Hottentoos) - which baptism was not even noted in the Company’s Journal, not to mention the confiscation and hurried baptism of the short-lived infant Florida.²⁸ It is only much later (4 July 1697) that an optimistic Kaapsche Kerkenraad and Rev. Petrus Kalden, report in glowing terms to the Classis Amsterdam about the state of the Church in the remotest part of Africa (de staat van de Kerk in het uytterste gedeelte van Afrika) claiming that “the Cape Congregation was in a thriving condition” (de Kaapsche Gemeente bevindt zich in een bloeienden toestand) and that any interest in Heathen (if not specifically ‘Hottentot’) conversion was being rekindled:²⁹

Wat de gemeente aen mijn gedestineerde plaatse aengaet, is onder Godes zeegen nog in bloeyende welstand, aenwassende dagelijx soo van leeden tot H.[eilige] als van Heydenen die sigh tot het Christen geloof overgeven en laeten doopen.

The non-enslavement of the Cape's indigenous people meant that, soon after VOC settlement, other deracinated African and Asian slaves were consequently imported to the Cape and their offspring enslaved - either Company or privately owned. The bulk were Company slaves housed in the Slave Lodge while an increasing number of privately owned domesticated slaves and their offspring were integrated into the households of VOC officials and wealthy free-burghers. Once baptized, slaves could not be legally alienated – transferred, ceded, mortgaged or resold. Trading baptized slaves was prohibited.

Only halfslag (mixed race) private slave infants were initially baptized - full race or heelslag being excluded. Halfslag were generally fathered by Europeans and acknowledgement presumably extended to cases where an infant's somatic features reiterated unknown or unidentifiable European biological fatherhood³⁰. Such concessionary baptism initially derived from the halfslag slave infant's recognized legal right to freedom at majority (22 years of age for women and 25 for men) in terms of White paternity but subject to other requirements (fluency in Dutch and payment for education received). Concerning halfslag children of exiled convicts, the application of this policy still proved problematic (as late as 1686) as evidenced in correspondence between the Cape and its 'sub-colony' Mauritius:

"Regarding the half-breed girl mentioned by us to you, you order that she is to serve the Company until her 22nd year, when she is to be emancipated on condition that she makes profession of her (Christian) faith, and moreover pays f 150 for her education. We are well aware that this rule is observed in the case of slave children having Dutch fathers, but whether it applies to children of convict women by Dutch fathers, as the case of this girl, we would like to hear from you."³¹

In time (1663 onwards) Company halfslag slave infants were also allowed baptism - initial preference being given to slave infants of domesticated slave mothers. Notwithstanding the intermittent slave baptisms prior to 1663, it was Rev, Petrus Casier / Cassier who took the bold step of baptizing en masse slave infants (privately and Company owned) at the Cape. His precedent was bolstered ex post facto in a missive sanctioning the continued baptism of slave infants and instructing the Cape to continue the practice initiated by Cassier.³² This missive had been sent from Batavia by the Governor-General at the behest of Cassier after arriving in Batavia and obtaining the support of the influential Pieter Anthonisz: Overtwater (c. 1610-1682) (from Hoorn)³³. This policy was duly enforced by Cape commander Zacharias Wagenaer following the arrival of the colony's newly appointed first resident minister Joan van Arckel.

Pieter Anthonisz: Overtwater
(c. 1610-1682)

It became Company policy at the Cape to baptize all Company owned slave infants – but not without controversy:³⁴

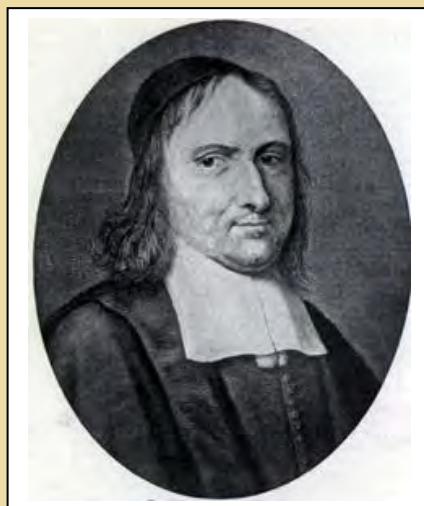

"... it had been a matter of dispute whether the children of unbelieving parents should be admitted to baptism, and that, after reference to the Classis in Holland, the question was decided in the affirmative; provided the person with whom they live, whether the owner or not, obliges himself to educate them in the Christian religion; this being chiefly being founded upon the example of the patriarch Abraham, in whose faith all who were in his house were circumcised; and the observance has accordingly been long followed here; even with those belonging to the Company, which has established schools for the purpose, where, as soon as they come to the proper age, they are instructed in the Christian Religion. You may therefore take this regulation for your guidance, and if you proceed in that holy work, there, as is done here, you will do well and act the part of a Christian."

Fury at the Font

On 21 March 1666 the Reverend Philippus Baldeus, stopped over at the Cape en route from Ceylon. He profoundly upset the virgin colony by objecting to the inexperienced 25-year-old resident minister Joannes de Voogd³⁵ baptizing the infant of an unbaptized slave woman. In mid-ritual, the visiting (more senior) minister, vociferously interrupted the ceremony. He thereupon berated the resident minister for baptizing the child of a heathen in violation of church doctrine and disregarding the holiness of the sacrament. Immediately beforehand, the infant daughter of a prominent en passant VOC official had just been baptized:

"The daughter of Jacob Huyssor by his wife Janniken Duyssink was baptized Jacomina and witnessed by Jan Anthonij Haemste, Paulus du Bois and Catharina Bel."

... Dit is Baldeus zelf, die 't blinde Heydedom, Door leven en door leer bracht tot het Christendom ...

The Cape's commander at the time, Zacharias Wagenaer (from Dresden), a compassionate, seasoned VOC official and well-travelled diplomat, diffused the deadlock by temporarily deferring to Baldeus's ostensibly more informed opinion. The ceremony was duly interrupted, the slave woman and her infant, summarily dismissed. The following day, Wagenaer convened his Council of Policy to deliberate the matter. If Baldeus was right, then the Cape had been in the wrong for quite some time. There were already a number of 'illegally' baptized slave children of heathen parentage in the Company Slave Lodge. Undaunted, Wagenaer and his Council of Policy resolved to continue with the allegedly improper practice until such time instructions to the contrary were received.

As authority, the council cited a dispatch from the governor-general in Batavia (25 January 1664). Not only had certain ministers already clarified this point - also with confirmation from church headquarters, the Classis Amsterdam - but the biblical example of the patriarch Abraham 'baptising' (but not circumcizing) his household slaves, was also invoked. As provision existed for the schooling of baptised slave children, these were sufficiently exposed to Christianity after baptism.³⁶

Baldeus was duly informed that he had been overruled. When visiting the Cape the following year en route to the East, he made himself available for the vacant post of resident minister there. Not surprisingly, another minister was appointed.³⁷ Since 1655, Baldeus had been chaplain under Rijckloff van Goens in India. Later he became the minister at Jaffanapatnam in Ceylon. A keen linguist, he acquired a good knowledge of local Asian languages. His writings were published in Amsterdam (1672) under the title *Naauwkeurige Beschrijvinge van Malabar en Choromandel, Derzelver aangrenzende Rijken, en het machtige Eiland van Ceylon, Nevens een omstandige en grondigh doorzochte Ontdekking en Wederlegging van de Afgoderije der Oost-Indische Heydenen, waarin derzelver grootste geheymenissen soo uyt de eygene Geschriften als 't Zamenspraak, en Bijwooninge der Voornaamste Bramines en andere Indische Wetgeleerden getrouwelijk wierden aan 't licht gebracht.*³⁸

Baptismal policy continued to apply thereafter as confirmed and qualified in terms of the resolution by the Council of Policy (22 March 1666). Any slave children of the Company could be baptized, provided such baptism was deemed appropriate and was witnessed by the Church Council or one of its members. Effectively, appropriate in this instance meant only mixed race slave children were baptised. In practice, initially only slave children, who were obviously 'half-caste', were baptised. No need existed for the ministers recording the baptisms to qualify these children as halfslagh. The first baptism recording halfslagh status was only on 5 July 1671. The child's father is referred to as een christen vader. This was during the time of the minister Adriaan de Voogd.³⁹ He was brother to Johannes de Voogd who had been theologically challenged by Baldeus. Why he felt the need to change his style of recording halfway during his stay (1667-1674) at the Cape, is an open question. Thereafter, a practice set in whereby even if the father's identity was indeed known, the baptismal entry usually stated een onbekent Christen.

This resolution by the Church Council was superseded by a more detailed resolution of the Council of Policy effective for the period (28 December 1676-1 January 1677). The Church Council subsequently felt the need to reiterate this policy in terms of its own detailed resolution (10 January 1677). Infants of heathen parentage would only be baptized if the parents were sufficiently prepared for admission into the church. Slave children of mixed race and children of a Christian parent, were exempt from such a requirement.⁴⁰

This impractical policy proved to be politically and racially exploitable. The terms Christian and European, when used synonymously and restrictively, could be used to deny even non-European slave children (of whom at least one parent was Christian), the right to baptism. Was this the reason the Church Council and its new minister were still seeking approval thereafter from the Classis Amsterdam of inter alia the more liberal practice of baptizing all Company slave infants, the only condition being that these were to be accounted for by a Company official?⁴¹ Even by 1685, visiting Commissioner Van Reede complained about the neglect at the Cape to baptize Company slave children who were allowed to walk around as unbaptized heathen.⁴²

Robert Ross states, inaccurately and questionably, that the Cape's first resident minister Joan van Arckel⁴³ set a "precedent" for the future (presumably consistent) baptism of non-Europeans at the Cape by baptising the 'Hottentot' infant Florida and more specifically, for the baptism of all babies born in the VOC slave lodge. This makes no sense in the light of the developments sketched above:⁴⁴

"Within the context of the Netherlands, where nearly everyone was Christian, even if many were Roman Catholics, this argument [namely whether individuals ought to be baptised when adults rather than automatically as children] did not cause great problems. In South Africa, with numerous slaves and Khoikhoi who were not of Christian descent, further difficulties arose. It was as if there was a theological foreshadowing of the 'nature versus nurture' debate. Was it enough for children to be born and brought up in a Christian environment? Or was the acknowledged descent from Christian parents a requirement for infant baptism? There were those who took the former position, notable Dominee Johan van Arckel who ministered at the Cape for six months until his death in 1669 [sic]. He [sic] was prepared to baptise a Khoikhoi child [Florida] who had been adopted by Europeans, and he [sic] established the policy, which would continue throughout VOC rule, that all [sic] babies born in the VOC slave lodge were to be baptized".

Joan van Arckel could not have baptized the 'Hottentot' infant Florida. The child had been rescued (1669) by resident European women from being buried alive with the child's deceased mother in a traditional Khoe ceremony and had died a few months later.⁴⁵ Van Arckel had died already (12 January 1666). It was Adriaan de Voogd who baptised this child. Also, in view of the theological dispute set out above, no precedent was possible.

Although the dramatic intervention by Baldeus has received academic attention, there has been no attempt to identify the heathen mother and her rejected child.⁴⁶ Nobody has looked at the incident from the perspective of the victim/s of the incident. The slave woman at the centre of the controversy was permitted to again present her child for baptism the following Sunday. The baptismal entry (28 March 1666) reveals that the slave woman and the child in question, were none other than the banished convict Susanna Een Oor van Bengale and her infant son. The child was duly baptized with the name Andries:

"the 28 March 1666 was baptized a son of one of the Honourable Company's slave woman and was named Andries the mother was called Susanna."

The positive identification of the victims concerned, allows us to speculate, justifiably, as to whether there had been more to the incident than a mere ministerial objection to the baptism of a heathen's child? Patently a convict, did the earless Susanna's grotesque appearance sour the refined sensibilities of the visiting high-ranking officials? Was the ceremony further marred because Susanna's son, Andries, was a 'half-caste'? Was the child's biological paternity irrefutably and visibly Christian and European?

Not all slave infants were baptized by the Company. Preference was given to 'half-castes' in deference to their visual, known or recognized white biological fathers. Had Susanna already satisfied the church fathers that she herself was "sufficiently prepared for admission into the church" thereby providing sufficient grounds for her son to be baptized before her? At the time of her execution for infanticide, Susanna was provided with religious support in order to prepare herself for her death "in a Christian manner" ... Why else would there have been such a fuss over the baptism of Andries? Would an already mutilated Susanna have been further scarred by such publicized rejection of her son whom she had consecrated to God? Did this in any way influence or aggravate the later tragic aspects of Susanna's dismembered and stunted life, ending in infanticide and execution?

An inclusive policy was only later (1685) consistently implemented following reforms instituted by VOC Commissioner-General H.A. Van Rheed tot Drake(n)stein whereby all Company slave infants – also heelslag – were baptized and special precautions instituted regarding the "indisputable children of our own nation" who "cannot be [indefinitely?] enslaved" such "children of Dutch fathers" not being "guilty of the transgressions of their parents".⁴⁷ Following the Synod of Dordrecht (1618) which formalized Reformed Church doctrine, children of non-Christian parents were denied infant baptism and could only be baptized as adults. The exigencies of empire, colonial intercourse and increasing – more permanent - exposure to a plurality of alien cultures made such a policy impractical inducing the VOC to exercise its autonomy by allowing baptisms for slave infants.⁴⁸

This policy was eventually amended: if either or both slave parents were baptized, their children could qualify for baptism. Slave owners could stand in loco parentis of a slave infant with a commitment to rear the child as a Christian. Baptism of Company slave infants were witnessed by Company officials – usually Council of Policy representatives and the sick-comforter, schoolmaster or Slave Lodge superintendent - and provision made for children in the Lodge to receive instruction (also religious) and to attend church. Initially Company slave halfslag infants were baptized minus recorded witnesses. Company officials are recorded as witnesses to baptized Company slave infants (from 12 September 1666 onwards). Illegitimacy, although recorded, did not preclude baptism - also in the case of slave infants, notwithstanding the biblical injunction “no bastard shall enter the assembly of the Lord, even to the tenth generation none of his descendants shall enter the assembly of the Lord”.⁴⁹ This policy changed (1781) when the Church Council (Cape Town congregation) required persons presenting children procreated illegitimately to address the council for special permission becoming further restrictive thereafter reflecting contemporary mores.⁵⁰

Baptism of heelslag Company slave infants (involuntary) and adults (voluntary) ensued. Baptism private slaves was at the discretion of owners and rare. Unbaptized slaves, clearly, had more economic value which discouraged private owners from baptizing and converting their slaves to Christianity. Only the more obviously ‘white-looking’ private slave infants appear to have been singled out for baptism. The tendency by slave-owning church ministers during this early period never to baptize any of their own private slaves or their slaves’ infants or even liberate them, unlike top-ranking Company officials and wealthy free-burghers, makes for troubrous contemplation.⁵¹

Some notable firsts

The first halfslag slave infant to be born at the Cape (c. 1655) appears to be the half-‘Abysinnian’ Armozijn de Groote (c. 1657-1713) – her mother being initially a private but later expropriated Company slave - followed by the very influential half-‘Indian’ private slave Maria Hendriks: (c. 1657-1720)⁵² whose pivotal role in early Cape colonial society has yet to be fully appreciated. The first baptized slave infant on record found thus far is one Heindrick (1659) whose further identity remains undetermined but possibly sibling to the afore-mentioned Maria whose baptism is missing and who, effectively, is likely to be the Cape’s first baptized slave infant.⁵³

The first baptized (1660) halfslag Cape-born Company slave infant is Pieter Willemsz: Tamboer / Africano (1660 [?] - 1729) – likely son of Lisbeth Arabus van Abisinna followed (1662) by the likely daughters of an exiled convict (bandiet) Catharina [Catharina (Catrijn) Vrijman / Wagenmakers (c. 1658-1700)] – who later gains notoriety for keeping a brothel – and her wealthier half-sister who marries into junior VOC officialdom Maria [Maria (Marritie) Pieters: (c. 1660-1717)].

The first baptized (1668) heelslag imported manumitted private slave adult is the very ‘respectable’ Angiela [Maaij Ans(i)ela / Angela / Engela van Bengale (died 1720)]⁵⁴ and the first baptized (1668) heelslag imported Company slave adult is the genealogically significant, twice-pardoned but previously exiled, convict and washerwoman to successive Cape commanders Catharien [Catharina (Groote Catrijn) van Paliacatta [Pulicat] (c. 1631-1683)].⁵⁵

The first baptized (1677) heelslag Cape-born private slave infants are probably Antonij and Domingo – slaves belonging to Governor Joan van Bax van Herentals and wife Aletta van Hinlopen.

The first baptized (1679) heelslag Cape-born Company slave infant is Jacob.

The first baptized (1679) heelslag Cape-born Company slave adults are all baptized (1686 and 1687) in accordance with Commissioner-General Hendrik A. van Reede’s instructions (1685) ensuring that all existing Cape-born Company slaves denied infant baptism were ultimately baptized.⁵⁶

Impediments to marriage

Other than the usual impediments to Christian marriage (non-Christians disallowed, prohibited degrees of consanguinity or affinity, not pre-contracted to another partner and not of full age minus requisite permission), making marriage legal, further promulgated restrictions existed that obtained in Batavia and presumably at the Cape (see appendices below). A further curious restriction was introduced (1685) at the Cape by Van Reede: marriage by Netherlanders and other Europeans to manumitted Company slave women was forbidden but not to their halfslag daughters, however, on condition that Company officials left the service.⁵⁷

Concubinage

Concubinage and that “shameful crime of fornication or whoredom” (het schandelyke crime van fornicatie ofte hoerendom) with slaves were strictly forbidden in terms of the Statutes of India. Also outlawed was sexual intercourse by Christians with Muslims and Heathens. Nevertheless, the attitude towards halfbreeds seems to have been one of colonial opportunism, resignation and expediency: Necessity is the mother of invention, and the father of the half-breed as paraphrased by Boxer.⁵⁸ The peculiar circumstances of the Cape as an emerging colony allowed for greater relaxation of these laws. On one crucial occasion the Cape's first commander is quite explicit in a despatch to Batavia that he had high hopes for the Company's men to take wives from the first shipload of slaves ('black gold') that the Company had contemplated providing from Angola.⁵⁹

As soon as we shall have obtained male and female slaves from Angola ... we believe that it will then be the right time to lay the foundations for private agriculture, and should some of these agriculturists marry the women, they will be nicely bound to the Cape for life, and be further accommodated with slaves on credit. It is our opinion that this will also lay a good foundation for a young colony as regards agriculture.

Jan van Riebeeck is even recorded encouraging his men to fructify Company slaves as this could only be beneficial to the Company (het is ten dienste van de Compagnie) in swelling the available labour force.⁶⁰ It was only after Commissioner IJsbrand Goske's visit to the Cape (1671) that fornication and concubinage with slave women began to be officially discouraged. When Van Reede inspected the colony (1685), he found that few of Goske's recommendations had been followed. Concerning concubinage, everybody he consulted, thought that it was perfectly natural and not illegal (ondervond de concubinage onder deseelve met onse natie so openbaar ende bekent, men daervan als van getolereerde dingen spreek).⁶¹ The realization had set in that the Company's coercible labour pool would diminish dramatically once half-castes affirmed their right to freedom on obtaining majority:⁶²

“...it tends besides to the evident prejudice of the Company, as we are obliged, after a lapse of a few years, to discharge the mestice children, which are the result of such commerce, from servitude, while those procreated by their own countrymen always continue as slaves”.

The first edict (placcaaten) to be promulgated by the Council of Policy at the Cape was only formulated much later (30 November 1678) and soon became a dead letter. Significantly, the first formal prosecution, twenty years later (1690), involved a privately owned slave woman and not a Company slave.⁶³ Concubinage was thus prohibited – at least in principle if not in practice - and slave couples were encouraged to ‘marry’ inter se to counter the problem of concubinage and an uneconomical surplus of halfslag slave children whose slave lives and labour potential were of limited duration expiring on attaining majority. The sentencing (1699) of a heathen male for having sexually intercourse with a Christian halfbreed female illustrates the complexities and relativity of the mores taking shape.⁶⁴

Sentence of the Court of Nagapatam against CREYNA, a heathen of the Pariah class, who has seduced a half-caste Christian girl: “It being a detestable thing that a heathen should amalgamate with a Christian, and contrary to divine law and human law,” prisoner is sentenced to be severely whipped and banished to the Cape for 50 years

Armozijn

That some slave mothers continued using ethnic names after their infants were baptized with Christian names is evidenced by a curious Journal entry referring to the ‘baptized’ slave infants Armazie, Crisen, Zon and Basoe⁶⁵ during the time of the worldly and culturally tolerant Commander Zacharias Wagenaer:⁶⁶

In the same way the baptized⁶⁷ slave children of the Company and the burghers, especially those descended from European or Christian fathers, should be educated and in time brought to the true knowledge of God, as the sick comforter [Pieter van der Stael] has already done in the case of Armazie, Crisen, Zon and Basoe - a laudable commencement on which may God Almighty grant His grace and blessing.

Of these four names, the name Armozijn persisted, becoming a curious remnant and legacy from the early colonial period.⁶⁸ Why this unusual personal non-Christian name – also recorded variously in Cape records as Amazensie, Armazie, Armoisy, Armosi, Armosij, Armosijn, Armosina, Armosy, Armosyn, Armozyn and Harmosy - came to be sanctioned baptismally for two adult Company slave women (one halfslag and one heelslag) and one halfslag private slave infant – all Cape-born - is one of the more intriguing enigmas of early South African colonial history.⁶⁹ The writer suspects, however, that the ‘baptized’ halfslag private slave infant Armazie – described thus by Wagenaer (supra) - is only baptized Armosy later as an adult (17 September 1679) by which time her status alters to that of Company slave and she becomes better-known as Armozijn de Groote. All three Armozijns are born to slave mothers and biological fathers that defy positive identification.

Much has been written about the heelslag Company slave Armozijn Claesz: van de Caep [Armozijn de Cleijne] (c. 1661-1733), matron of the Company slave children baptized (23 February 1687) as an adult.⁷⁰ Little attention, however, has been given to her older namesake, the halfslag Company slave Armozijn van de Caep [Armozijn de Groote] (c. 1657-1713) – baptized (17 September 1679) as as an adult. The older Armozijn, features only briefly in several writings about her junior counterpart. She is one of the many victims of the smallpox epidemic (1713). Are these two Company slaves in any way related to the ‘Abyssinian’ slave girls Lijsbeth Arabus and Cornelia Arabus whose origins likely hark back to the places Ormuz [Hormuz / Hurmuz] in the Persian Gulf and its famous textile of the same name and possibly also the island of Manda on the Lamu archipelago off the Kenyan coast? Armozijn de Cleijne baptized her eldest daughter with the telling name of Manda (her mother's ethnic name?). Manda is a name associated with a small religious Semitic sect of great antiquity known as Mandaeans or Sabians (Sabba in the Mandaic language) still found in Iran and southern Iraq and closely tied to the Parsees – Persians who withstood conversion to Islam. Sabba is also a name associated with southern Arabia, Yemen, Oman and the queen of Sheba.

Why not baptized as an infant? Lack of an identifiable European biological father (no patronymic ever attributed or adopted) & non-availability of a minister until April 1660 are possible reasons for being overlooked.

Commander Jan van Riebeeck appoints brother-in-law, Pieter van der Stael (from Rotterdam), hospital superintendent who does "his best to teach some Hottentots and some slaves of the Company and its servants to read our Dutch language ... and with some success":¹⁷²

"Arrangements were started for establishing a school for the Company's male and female slaves brought here from Angola by the Amersfoort, which had taken them off a prize Portuguese slaver. The sick-comforter Pieter van der Stael of Rotterdam has been entrusted with the task of giving them instruction in the morning and afternoon, besides his duties of visiting the sick, particularly because he reads Dutch well and correctly. To encourage the slaves to attend and to hear and learn the Christian prayers, it is ordered that after school everyone is to receive a small glass of brandy and two inches of tobacco. All their names are to be written down and those who have none, are to be given names, paired or unpaired, young or old. All this is to be done in the presence of the Commander, who will attend for a few days to put everything in proper order and subject these people to proper discipline, signs of which are already apparent. All the slaves are to be properly clothed to protect them against the daily increasing cold. The strongest have been put to work so that they may as soon as possible be of service to the settlement."¹⁷³

missing baptisms:

Pieter van der Stael in his letter to the Classis Amsterdam intimates that for the period (23 November 1656-13 January 1658) no ministers stopped at the Cape. Mention is made of 3 children in need of baptism: one of the Commander [Jan van Riebeeck - Maria], one of the Sergeant [Jan van Harwaerden] and one of his own [Pieter van der Stael]:

*Mijn Heeren,

En alderhande Hemel Wijn.

U dochters bruilofs-dach komt naader,
Bereit het welig ledikant,

Confirmation of policy of baptism of children of unbelieving parents:

"In a Despatch ... acknowledging letters from the Cape of 24th Sept. and 14th and 21st Oct. 1663, no mention is made of natives, but an explanation is given of the grounds upon which slave children were baptized; it is stated that "it had been a matter of dispute whether the children of unbelieving parents should be admitted to baptism, and that, after reference to the Classis in Holland, the question was decided in the affirmative; provided the person with whom they live, whether the owner or not, obliges himself to educate them in the Christian religion; this being chiefly being founded upon the example of the patriarch

Abraham, in whose faith all who were in his house were circumcised; and the observance has accordingly been long followed here; even with those belonging to the Company, which has established schools for the purpose, where, as soon as they come to the proper age, they are instructed in the Christian Religion. You may therefore take this regulation for your guidance, and if you proceed in that holy work, there, as is done here, you will do well and act the part of a Christian."²⁹¹

Appendix 1 Summary of discriminatory Roman-Dutch Law principles pertaining to VOC-occupied Cape:

- Amalgam of Roman Law, Germanic/Hollandic Common Law & Judæo-Christian Canon Law forms legal basis of Dutch society in general.
- Civil society in Dutch colonies consists of 3 categories of legal subjects: free persons (imported, indigenous or locally born), slaves (imported or locally born of slave parents) and a concessionary category of freed persons (former slaves).
- The established faith is Christian but the established church is Protestant and Reformed.
- The rest of the world is regarded as being either Jewish or Mohammedan (Moors) and the remainder - including the Chinese and Hindus (Gentiam / Jentives / Jintoos / [Gentiles]) - as being 'unenlightened' (Heathen or Pagan), whose testimony in law is inadmissible.
- Christians are ipso facto free (or if enslaved entitled to freedom).
- Christians have to be baptized and sufficiently culturally Netherlandized free persons (Europeans or creole / Cape-born whites), free-born persons (generally colonized indigenes & later the offspring of freed persons), or freed persons (former slaves now manumitted).
- Marriage is non-polygamous and only legal between a Christian man and Christian woman (irrespective of any racial or ethnic background).
- Marriage is initially exclusively an ecclesiastical institution ('canon marriage') -legality later secularized requiring recognition by civil authorities ('civil marriage').
- Marriage no longer has to be performed in church to be legal. (Lutherans, Mennonites & Roman Catholics, for example, can marry legally at Cape with permission from Commissioners of Matrimonial Affairs, usually officers of Council of Justice & elected burgher representatives) – subject to ecclesiastical approval (eg proof of baptism & confirmation).
- Marriage between Christians & Jews and Christians & Muslims, are not legally recognized.
- Slaves as unfree people have no right to legal marriage but are encouraged to 'marry' inter se.
- Non-Christian or culturally alien marriages between slaves (eg Muslim, Hindu, polygamous or indigenous African / Asian), although encouraged and unofficially tolerated, have no legality.
- Morality & Immorality are legally regulated deriving from Canon Law (eg at one stage sex between a Christian and a Jew qualified as bestiality - sex with an animal)
- Extra-marital intimacy (incest, adultery, concubinage, whoredom, fornication, sex between Christians and non-Christians, sodomy & bestiality) are outlawed.

Criminalization and juristic / judicial condemnation of 'unnatural' practices / acts or sexual offences between males are biblically derived. These feature in lex Julia de adulteriis imposing the death penalty. Such acts are expressly proscribed by Justinian in his Novels. Roman-Dutch jurists lump all unnatural offences together under the title Sodomie, Onkuishheid tegen de natuur or venus monstrosa. A discernible pre-occupation with punishment takes precedence over niceties of definition. The concept of unnatural acts appears to cover a multitude of sins, as it were. Sodomy and bestiality (often collectively known as buggery), as they are understood today, are not separate crimes, but simply ways of committing venus monstrosa. The crime is constituted by the 'gratification of sexual lust in a manner contrary to the order of nature'. Jurists are not ad idem as to what constitutes unnatural acts. That the concept is highly relative is confirmed by influential contemporary jurists such as Joost de Damhouder (1507-81) & Carpzovius (1595-1666) opining that even ordinary sexual relations between Jews and Christians are punishable acts qualifying as sodomie.²⁹²

Appendix 2

Nomenclature & identity tags peculiar to the Cape of Good Hope deriving from an individual's legal status made for legally-entrenched hierarchic discrimination

- Christen = Christian.
- Onchristen = non-Christian.
- Vrij geboren = free-born and never enslaved (refers generally to swartes - indigenes, east Asian political exiles & to offspring of liberated slaves). Such a person was not the same as a free-black, although s/he would easily and often (even purposely) be mis-identified as being vrij zwart.
- Vrij zwart = manumitted or liberated from slavery having ostensibly the same legal status as freeburghers. Sub-groups also existed, eg vrij chinees & vrij caffer.
- Lijfeigen or Slaaf = slave.
- Heelslagh = full caste or full-blood (refers generally to non-white slaves having no white admixture). These were further distinguished inter alia as neger, caffer, indisch, chinees etc.
- Halfslagh = half-caste.
- Mestiço or Mesties = Eurasian half-caste (refers generally to child of a white father and an Asian slave mother).
- Mulatto = Eurafrican half-caste (refers generally to a child of a white father and an African / Negro / Bantu slave mother).
- Kastiço or Kasties = child of a mesties or mulatto slave mother and white father.
- Bastaard = child of a white father & Hottentot / Bushman mother.
- Bastaard Hottentot = child of a Hottentot / Bushman mother & (African / Negro / Bantu or Asian) slave father.
- Hottentot = Cape indigene known as Quena / Khoena / Khoekhoe.
- Bosjesman = Bushmen / San / Saan and also Hottentots who have been Bushmanised (ie Hottentot minus their livestock and hunted down as Bushmen).

Batavian Edicts on Marriage Proclamations, Impediments to Marriage & Repatriation and Native Women²⁹³

Edicts on Marriage Proclamations and Impediments to Marriage

10 September 1632:

Injunction to Collegie van Schepenen as Commissioners of Matrimonial Affairs to register marriage proclamations instead of Church Council who until now has provisioned for them and afterwards shall no longer [register marriage proclamations].

The marriage proclamations are not allowed:

- a. to Company personnel not furnished with acts of consent granted by Governor-General
- b. to blacks [swarten] not furnished with attestations granted by Church Council that they were instructed substantially in first principles of Christian religion [PB, I:277].

Commissioners for Matrimonial Affairs

For sound reasons, the aforementioned commissioners are henceforth expressly forbidden to register a marriage proclamation of a Netherlander with any native woman unless she can moderately understand and speak the Dutch language ... set of instructions in 1642 Statutes of Batavia [PB, I:542].

19 June 1665:

Prohibition against the registration of marriage proclamations of slaves with free women, unless it became apparent to the Commissioners of Marital Affairs that said persons had begotten one or more children. Stipulation that the [marriage] proclamations of persons, who are not Netherlanders, would be given in the Malay or Portuguese Church. [PB II:397].

16 February 1672:

Proclamations of weddings of Christian natives must be done both in Portuguese & Malay church in Batavia [PB II:555].

Impediments to Marriage

15 January 1621:

Prohibition against marriage and baptism without consent

Marriage and baptism may only take place with consent and recommendation from our respective authorities of this place and that consent and recommendation from the servants of God's Holy Word, thereto authorized by the parish of the Holy Church of the United Netherlands and permitted by us, the punishment is 50 pieces of eight and arbitrale correctie [PB I: 89].

8/11 June, 1641:

Means to the advancement of the knowledge and the use of the Dutch language.

Through male and females slaves, the use of the Portuguese language had expanded so much in Batavia and in other Company stations that the government foresaw Portuguese gaining the upperhand and smothering, once and for all, the language of our Fatherland:

|-----------|--|
| Article 1 | In previous times, for identification, slaves forbidden to wear hats. At present slaves are permitted to wear caps and hats if they moderately understand and speak the Dutch language, of which they must be able to show written verification, given by the Commissioners for Matrimonial Affairs. Otherwise their hat or cap will be confiscated and themselves be whipped soundly. |
| Article 2 | Male or female slaves [slaven of slavinnen], belonging to Christian owners must grant no letters of freedom [vrij-brieven] unless they have papers showing that they could moderately speak the Dutch language. |
| Article 3 | Native women, who do not moderately speak and understand our Dutch language, may not marry Netherlanders [PB, I: 459-60]. |

Repatriation and Native Women

1 September, 1633:

Instructions for those desiring to return to the Netherlands to report to Councilor of the Indies, J. van der Burch, within 3 days.

Ratio for these instructions: Government did not want to hinder shipping by transporting too many women and children [PB, I: 296-97].

6 September 1633:

Stipulations upon which men can be liberated to the Netherlands.

Because of the quantity of requests to repatriate with the return-fleet, following conditions put in place:

Men shall not allow widow or young daughters to leave, unless they themselves go in the service of, or under the supervision of, a qualified (gequalificeerde) married family.

No menfolk who are married to Indies women shall be allowed to depart unless they leave behind means for them (and indicate it to us), wherewith their wives could and would be properly provided for in their absence [PB, I: 297].

30 Sept-6 October 1649:

Prohibition against the departure to Europe of native wives and of husbands, with anyone who is married to them.

[Enacted with reference to precepts contained in missives from the Heeren XVII (29 March 1649)] ... The ban against the departure of native wives, etc., was enacted toward the advancement and stabilization of a good, fixed and well regulated colony in these lands ... and for other weighty reasons., The prohibition pertains to all native women, whether they be free or not free, mixed or other naturals [naturellen] of these lands, married or not married., They also may not set out for Europe on English, Danish, French, or Portuguese ships. The penalty was arbitrary punishment to the body and the wyders according to the exigencies of the matter [PB, II: 132-34].

⁴ These are housed at the Stadsarchief, Amsterdam, Netherlands: Inventory No. 379: Archief van de Classis Amsterdam van de Nederlandse Hervormde Kerk. The letters from the Cape reside in 3 volumes, (inventory nos. 206-208 (Ingekomen stukken betreffende kerklijke zaken op Kaap de Goede Hoop, 1655-1792) as follows: 206: 1655-1747; 207: 1748-1773 (feb 25) & 208: 1772-1792. These include 9 of the 11 original letters (pp. 1-37) sent by Pieter van der Stael for the period (6 April 1652-14 May 1663) – the 1st letter covers (6 April 1652-April 1655) as recorded by Van der Stael's predecessor and cousin (Willem Barentsz: Weiland) & his last letter (14 May 1663) was signed before his departure for Batavia [Corney Keller – personal communication]. A 4th letter is missing, however and excerpts of the 11th letter (20 January 1664) are quoted in J.P. Claasen, Die Sieketroosters in Suid-Afrika 1652-1866, (1977), pp. 264-267, but this letter (possibly misfiled) has yet to be found in the Archief van de Classis Amsterdam van de Nederlandse Hervormde Kerk.

As for the slaves, the first entries were Cornelia and Lijsbeth Arabus [sic]. Then followed Heindrick, Pietertje, Reijntje, two Jacobs, an Annetje, Cathalisa, Mary and Lowijs, who had been baptised on the 8th April 1663. Another Mary and Jan Bruijn are registered as children of mixed marriages."

⁷ C. Spoelstra (ed.), Bouwstoffen voor de geschiedenis der Nederduitsch-Gereformeerde Kerken in Zuid-Afrika (HAUM, Amsterdam 1906-7) who lists details of baptisms and marriages as recorded by the Cape's 1st sick-comforter Pieter van der Stael in his despatches to the Classis Amsterdam.

⁸ Jan Bruijn – more likely heelslag - is resold (presumably unbaptized) as a slave – if baptized, this would be illegal. No record of his sale has been traced, but he is on record (1 October 1658) belonging (ie registered) to free-burgher Leendert Cornelisz: (from Sevenhuijzen) [CA: CTD 1 (1 October 1658), p. 110; J. Leon Hattingh, Kronos, vol. 14 (1988), p. 54]. No corroborating evidence has been found that the two 'Abysinnian' slave girls were ever baptized.

Hoogh eerwaerde Godtsal: en hooghgeleerde heeren en broeders des Classis tot Amsterdam :-

Also het Godt Almagtigh belieft heeft ons door syne goedertierens bewaerringe geluckigh en behouden te brengen aen de Caep de Bona Esperance den 17 october, ao' 1678 nae dat wy den 21 mej uit Thessel waeren gelopen, so laet ick u hoogh eerw: met dese myne letteren laet weten, als dat wy, mae dat wy daer aenlant gecomen wa[e]ren, hebben bevonden, dat d: Hulsenar sal: die ontrent 21 maenden dese ge[m]einte met het geestel: voetsel van Godes h: woort en der h: sacramenten heeft bedient, doe ontrent 10 maenden geleden was overleden, so hebben de e: heer Hendrick Cruidop, commandur-rende in de plaets van den ed: heer Backs sal: en de e: achtb: raeden goet gevonden, om dese gemeinte niet langer onbloot te laeten, dewyle d: Stumphius voorby was gepasseert, en so haest geen gelegetheit en saegen om van een dienaer te conen versien werden, my de eere hebben gedaen, ende versogt om daer te blyven, twelck van my ooc met een gewillige genegentheit is aenge- nomen, verhopende dat de Opperherder J: Ch: die my hier gesonden heeft met syn kragt en [g..een] sal aendoen, om deselve als een onberispelyck voorbeeld voor te gaen, en Hem veele sielen toe te brengen. Ick dancke myn Godt, dat Hy mij hier gebragt heeft, also ick ten hooghsten vergenoeght ben, want hier een tamelycke gemeente, een burgerlyck volck, en hier is een frei man die het opperhoofschap bekleedt, en een seer ordentelycke regeringe, en can als nog niet anders vermercken (sonder roem gesproken) als een goet genoegen. En also hier voor desen eenige swaerigheit wierde gemaeckt over het doopen van slaven kinderen, so is dan goet gevonden, om daer over nae Batavia to schryven, en hebben den ed: heer generael en syne e: achtbare raeden van Indien dese stamen gaende Resolutie [sic] overgesonden, waer [naer] dat sig altyt hebben gereguleert de die- naers van dese gemeinte. Maer also d: Philippus Baldeus, comende van Ceilon en vertreckende nae het vaderlant heeft geweigert een companie slaven kint hier ter laetse te doopen, en dar by verhaelt hoe sulkx was tegen de ordre der kercken in [in-]dien, en dat selve wert ons deschtycks geconfermeert van den eerw: broeder d. Johannes de Vooght nu comende van Ceilon nae het vaderlant. Ick en vinde hier niets van in onse kercke boekck, [weot] evenwel dat hier van particulier resolution by de e. synoden beraemt. Op dat wy dan hier van ten vollen verschiet mogten syn, so versoeckem wy aatmoedelyck het oordeel advys en resolutien hier van de eerw: broederen te verstaen. Om dan u eerw: volcomentlyck te informeren van't gene hier in tot nog toe gedaen is, en welcke kinderen alhier gedoopt syn, so dient te weten:-

1. dat geen kinderen van onse eigene inwoonders, de Hottentots, werden gedoopt dan alleen een vrouw, die [leedemaet] geworden synde haere kinderen ooc gedoopt syn: dog dese natie is [tunemael] afkeurigh van onse godtsdienst, wat middelen daer toe ooc voor desen syn aengewent.
 2. ooc niet alle kinderen van slaven werden gedoopt, maer allen somige, waer van de meesters en eigenaers deselve comen te presenteeren, en daer voor beloven, om die mede te sullen onderwysen in de christel: religie welcke belofte van sommige wel wat beter behoorde betracht te worden, overmits een ieder huisvader de syne [deer] van moeste versorgen, want al syn het syne slaven, en lyfeigen, so syn het evenwel menschen, en behoorden door haere slavernie by ons niet erger maer geluckiger gemaect te worden.
 3. dat ordinaris gedoopt werden de slaven kinderen, daer van de ouders by de Portugeesen gedoopt syn; ooc die kinderen, die by de Duitse natie worden geprocreert, 't sy dat de moeders syn gedoopt, of niet; en ooc alle slaven kinderen, die de e. companie toebehooren, waer voor by den h. doop een companys dienaer antwoort, welcke kinderen dan daer naer ter scholen werden gesonden, en men laet haer leren leesen en schryven, waer van enige de vragen van onse christel. cathechismus promtelyck alle sondagen weten op te seggen over de kercke, en nae der hant werden sy dan gesonden tot den arbeit
 4. ooc werden gedoopt kinderen van Paepsys ouders geboren, mits dat gereformeerde getuigen daer voor antwoorden.

Over welcke saecke wy van de eerw: broederen onderri[ch]inge verwachten, op dat wy mogen weten hoe wy met de beste ordre in Godts huis sullen [verkeeren]. De grote Godt kroone uwe hoogh: eerw: arbeit met een vollen segen des Evangeliums.

Uwe eerw: dienstwillige medebroeder

²⁷ Vorts wat aengaet dese natie hier te lande ofte dese inwoonders, is een seer arm elendigh volck na siel ende na lichaem; beroft van alle kennisse Godts; leven als het vee, so dat gjij niet en kont bemercken datse eenige maniere van godtdienst hebben ofte datter iets is, die sy eenige eer oft dienst bewisen, maer schint in dat stuck tusschen haer ende het onvernuftige vee van religie ofte godtdienst geen onderscheyt: want sie leven als beesten, die ock nergens geen werck van hebben, noch van saeyen ofte van planten, ofte dat men haer iets toepraet van Godt, die hebben der geen werck van; sodat het haest schint onmogelyck te sijn om haer tot die kenisse der waerheyt te brengen, want haer spraecke nyet wel is te leeren. Ock so en willen sij niet in (een?) blijven wonen, want ick al tot twe reysen toe een van haer jonges gehadt hebbe bij mij te wonen, daer ick van meende wat goets op te voeden, om hem lesen en schriven te leeren ende ock van hem haer spraeke te leeren, om door dat middel haer tot het licht der waerheyt te brengen; maer het wilde nyet lucken overmits sie dat lopen int wilde so gewent sijn, datse [haer] nyet en kunnen begeven onder subjectie van ons, sodatter luttick hoop schint te wesen van diese natie; doch wat den groten Godt gelieft aen haer te doen is sijn almogentheyt bekent, diewelcke machtich is om haer te treecken yth die dusternisse en brengen se tot licht soons Jesu Christi. Ondertusschen en sal ick nyet nalaten mijn schuldige plcht om alle mogelyck middelen te gebruiken oft den groten Godt beliefsde, door dat middel haer te trekken uth het rijcke der dusternisse ende verlossen sie uth die handen ende banden des Satans ende brengen se tot het rijcke sijns Soons; want het van herten is te wenschen van den goeden Godt dat het hem belieerde sijn genade een reys aen haer te betonen, want het seer arme elendige menschen sijn, diewelcke men qualick sonder schreven kan aensie. ³⁶ Maendag den 22en Martij ao. 1666.

Nadat wij desen achtermiddach eenige questieuze saken voorgevallen op de uijt reijs, tusschen de opperhooffden van 't alhier ter rheede leggende fluytschip de Goude Leeuw, getransigeert en afgehandelt hadden, heeft den Commandeur Wagenaer daer op den Raedt verthoont, en deselve voorgelesen seeckere kerckelijcke order, nopende een kinderoop alhier, bestaende in dit navolgende geschrift.

Extract uit seeckere missive geschreven bij d' Ede. Heer Gouvernr. Generael, ende d' E.E. Heeren Raden van India, aen den Commandr. ende Raedt deser fortresse sub dato 25en Januanj Ao. 1664.

Ons is door d' heer Pieter Overtwater, en oock den predicator Petrus Casier voorgedragen ende te kennen gegeven hoe UE. hun enichsints verlegen vondt in 't stuck van de slavenkinderen, die ginder geboren worden, te laten doopen, als niet wetende hoe sich eigentlijck daerinne sullen hebben te gedragen, hier is tevoren bij de kerckelijcke vergaderinge over dat point, al eenige disputatie gevallen, te weten off slavenkinderen van ongelovige ouders geboren zijnde, een H. doop mochten ingelijft worden, dan niet, ende is na voorgaande communicatie mette Classis in 't vaderlandt verstaen van ja, en dat op dusdanigen wijse, te weten, dat alsulcke kinderen op 't Christengelove, van degeene, daer se bij inwonen, 't sij het hun lijffheeren zijn, ofte niet, wel mogen werden gedoopt, mits dat deselve haer verbinden, sodanich kindt, off kinderen in de Christelijcke religie op te trekken, sijnde dit ten principalen gefundeert, op het exemplē van den patriarch Abraham, op wiens gelove, alle die van sijnen huijse waren, besneden wierden, en is sulcx hier een lange wijle aldus in observantie geweest, Ja oock selver omtrent de slavenkinderen van d' E. Compe, die daertoe schoolen opgerecht heeft, om sodanige gedoopte kinderen, wanneer se tot hare jaren comen, in de Christelijcke religie te laten onderwijsen, des U E. ginder na desen regul oock wel mogen schicken, latende dit H. werck in dier vuogen voortaan aldaer, gelijck hier geschiet mede sijn voortgangh nemen, waer aen U E. Christelijck en wel doen zult.

Op welcke order den Eerwaerdigen Joan van Arckel zaliger eerste uijtgesonden en wettich gestelde predicator over dese Gemeente alhier, voor den tijt van 5 maenden, alle kinderen die ten H. doop gebracht wierden, sonder onderscheijt 't zij die van gelovige Christelijcke off ongelovige heijdensche ouderen gesproten waren off niet, den H. doop heeft laten genieten, waer van de outste Comps. slavenkinderen, naderhant ter schoole gehouden, en aldaer in de kennisse Godts dagelijcks onderwesen sijn, gelijck na sijn overliden oock alsoo gedaen heeft, den predicator Joannes de Voocht als die wij onlangs geleden van 't schip Constantia met sijn believen aen landt genomen, en in do. van Arckels plaets zaliger soo lange gestelt hebben, totdat de belooffde permanente predicator uijt 't vaderlant hier souw verschenen wesen.

Ende ten aensien wij gisteren na 't eijndigen van de achtermiddeachs predicatie, die hier in de zael bij gemelte do. de Voocht gedaen wiert, met verwonderingh hebben gesien, dat een tweede predicator, die, die tijt, nevens ons present, en een mede auditeur van do. de Voocht was, genaemt Philippus Baldeus (sijnde op den 6en deser per 't schip Venenburch van Ceijlon alhier aengelandt, om voorts daermede naer 't vaderlant te retourneren) heel buijten dese order tradt, ende niet soo usact als hier alberijts ingevoert was, te werck gingh; maer scheen met 'et weijgeren van den doop aen seecker Comps. slavenkint te kennen te geven, dat hij dat werck beter als ijmant van ons allen verstonth, off dat ten minsten ons daermede heeft willen verwijten, hoe onvoorsichtich en ongeregelt wij dus langh in het plegen van alsulcke heijlige actien alhier mosten geleefht hebben: want soo als gisteren in volle kerckelijcke vergaderingh twee kinderen, te weten, een dat van Christelijcke Duijtsche ouderen geboren, en het ander dat bij een slavinnen gewonnen was, ten heijligen doop gepresenteert wierden, heeft hij dne. Baldeus het eerste in behoorlijcke form met de besprengingh des waters, en daer over te geven Zegen den H. doop geniete laten; maer het ander slavenkint heeft hij met goeden voorbedacht versmadelijckerwijs van hem afgewesen, daer sijne E. nochtans alvoren den Commandeur, ofte ten minsten een ouderlingh off diaken, had behooren te vragen, wat methode in dat werck bij ons, tot noch toe was onderhouden geweest, nadien hij wel wist, dat op dese tijt een off meer alsulcke slavenkinderen tot dien eijnde in de kercke stonden gebracht te werden, Soo is 't dat als nu voorn. Commandr. den Raedt in serieus bedencken gegeven, en een ijder van deselve daer op affgevraecht heeft, off wij ons na de veranderingh off nieuwicheijt, die gisteren meergemte. E. Baldeus in 't celebreren des H. Doops heeft soeken in te voeren, in 't toecomende alsoo behoorden te schicken, off bij onse voorsz oude order te blijven, ten aensien deselve niet alleen met het advijs van den Kerckenraedt tot Batavia; maer oock met dat van de Classis in 't vaderlandt, t' onser gerustheijt crachtich versterkt bevonden, waer op nae voorgaende accurate overwegingh hier in eenparich verstaen, en gearresteert is, dat wij ons voortaan, na die eens gegeven goede order reguleren, en den predicator de Voocht aenseggen sullen, dat sijn E. dat H. werck sijn voortganck sal laten nemen, en aenstaende Sondach, dat wegh gewesen slavenkint, en alle ander, die daerom soude mogen comen versoecken, ijder sijn doopsel te laten genieten, mits dese onse resolutie alvoren veelgemelten Baldeum (sic) sal gethoont, en met eenen aengedient werden, dat bij aldien sijn E. bij aendachtige resumtie der dickmaels genoemde dooporder eenige grove defecten off ietwes dat met de algemeene Sinodiale Gereformeerde Kerckenorder in dese landen eenichsints strijdich vinden mochten en echter op sijn aenwijzen met cleijne moeijte conde geremedieert off wegh genomen werden, wij ons hierin altijt gesegghelyck vinden laten, en daer voor danckbaer blijven sullen, om daermede allesints te doen blijcken, dat wij de gewenste eendracht, en vreede soo wel in kerckelijcke als politique saken alhier te bevorderen, en alsoo t' onderhouden soecken.

Aldus gedaen ende geresolveert, in 't Fort, de Goede Hoope, ten dage ende jare als vooren.

⁴⁹ Deuteronomy 23:2. It should be pointed out that in Dutch "bastard" means "mongrel" or "half-caste", as well as, indeed far more often than "illegitimate" [Robert Ross, 'Going Beyond the Pale: On the roots of White Supremacy in South Africa', Beyond the Pale: Essays on the History of Colonial South Africa, p. 230, n. 13].

⁵³ Discounting the possibility of an early death, no halfslag slave named Hendrik features in the records for any significant time thereafter.

⁵⁷ Policy consistently enforced with no manumitted heelslag slave women on record marrying Europeans or Whites and only 3 exceptions on record: Maria da Costa van Bengale, Anna Groothenning van Bengale and Manda Gracia van de Caep. Anna Groothenning may be halfslag despite toponym and allowed to marry. Maria da Costa van Bengale's marriage is probably a special case - already free-burgher's widow (free-black Isaak van Bengale) and sufficiently Netherlandized & Christianized. Manda Gracia's marriage is probably a concession: faithful service as matron, 2nd-generation Cape-born, whiter features (?) & indeterminate (?) heelslag / halfslag status possibly overlooked.

⁶⁶ Leibbrandt, Journal (30 November 1663); Moodie, p. 272.

⁶⁷ Was Wagenaer unaware that perhaps at least two (Maria Hendricks: & Armazie) of the earliest halfslag children had not yet been baptized?

⁶⁸ See for example the baptism (19 February 1679) of a halfslag private slave infant also named Armozijn: Amazensie halfslag van Mons./ieu/r Vlaesvat [Tobias Vlasvath]. Circumstantial evidence points to Amazensie (owned by the fiscal Tobias Vlasvath (from Amsterdam) being the slave woman Catharina van Batavia [Catharina van Bengale]: arrives (15 March 1662) on Princess Royaal & sold (22 April 1662) by Jacob Does to Jochem Blanck (from Luebeck). Was she slave to junior merchant & surgeon Pieter van Clinckenberg (from Middelburg) & following his death, belonging to Hester Weijers: / Jans: Klim (from Lier) who sells her to son-in-law Tobias Vlasvath (from Amsterdam)?
